

Please do not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law protections. I cannot begin to tell you how nice it is to come home from a day of answering the phone all day long and dealing with other people's problems and answering many questions and not be bothered with what would at times be abusive, pushy sales people. There have been several times when I have been called names, hung up on and then to be called back and called a profane name and hung up on again. I now receive zero calls selling stuff! It is so wonderful. My son, who attends IU in Bloomington, called me this very weekend and asked how to get on the "do not call" list because he is being overwhelmed with solicitors on a daily basis. He has heard me comment on how wonderful it is now for us. I am proud that our legislators care enough about the people of Indiana and their quality of time spent in their homes with their families. It should be against the law for companies to use the phone lines that other people pay for to promote their businesses. Please leave the current laws intact. We live in such crazy, busy times. This is just a small thing that much improves the quality of time spent in our homes.
